One of the biggest problems with Windows 7 is the ability to add items and personalize the desktop environment by creating and configuring shortcuts. Often, the application is responsible for the creation and placement of desktop icons, which is extremely inconvenient. Desktop Deluxe Tree solves this problem by allowing you to have a fully customizable and animated desktop without needing to add any of the software's icons to your machine. It can be used as a standalone program or as a virtual program that you can run on your own machine. If it happens that you have several monitors, you can move the tree to a new position on each of them as you wish. As long as you want, you can customize the transparent appearance of the tree with many different kinds of coloring. What's more, it allows you to run the program without accessing the Windows registry. In contrast, you can also use it to place multiple trees on the screen simultaneously if the computer has at least one monitor. Christmas Trees, Christmas Screensavers, Audio software or Christmas Tree Screensaver?
